

AMH Children's Dosing Companion

THE FIRST NATIONAL EVIDENCE-BASED GUIDE TO PAEDIATRIC MEDICINES DOSING IS FINALLY HERE!

The AMH Children's Dosing Companion is what paediatric health care professionals in Australia have been waiting for. If you are a paediatrician, general practitioner, pharmacist, medical student, community or hospital practitioner whose work involves providing healthcare to children, you will be pleased you can now have a powerful tool to help you achieve QUM and optimise patient care.

Brought to you by Australian Medicines Handbook – publisher of AMH, Australia's own independent, practical and reliable medicines reference – the Children's Dosing Companion is a subscription-only online guide to prescribing and administering medicines for young people in Australia.

Its development was made possible with the support of the Australian Health Ministers' Advisory Council, as part of the Paediatric Pharmaceuticals Prescribing Resource project.

The Companion provides detailed dosing information for individual drugs, with dosages arranged by indications and/or age groupings from toddlers to teens, as well as other specific information relating to each drug's paediatric use. All content is evidence-based and peer-reviewed.

The initial release includes monographs on around 230 drugs, covering more than 90% of current PBS paediatric prescribing in Australia. More drugs will be added with each six-monthly update.

In addition, the Companion contains more general information on paediatric prescribing and managing drug use, including off-label use and other hard-to-find data.

It can be viewed on virtually any standard device with internet access, with the format adjusting automatically to suit different screen sizes such as desktops, tablets as well as smartphones.

The AMH Children's Dosing Companion also contains links to the more comprehensive general information in AMH, including comparative data and drug interactions, and is best used with an AMH Online subscription.

If child health care is your business, you can be assured you now have the ideal Companion to help you take on the challenges involved.
